PREFACE

In adding this work to the long list of family histories already published, it is felt that a duty to coming generations has been fairly accomplished. As the years go on, more or less of the old time records are gradually being destroyed, and the aged amongst us, who were closely allied to the familiar figures of Revolutionary days, are now but few, and must, ere long, have passed away, thus closing to the world this valuable source of knowledge of the facts of history, and of the heroes of the latter years of the eighteenth century.

The contents of these pages are from family and church records—old papers, tombstones, public documents and the early history of our country, etc.; and from information derived from members of the family, on whom personal calls were made in many and widely distant parts of the country. The work was begun three years ago for the personal gratification of a member of the family. It is but lately completed, and only that it may be preserved in some of the great libraries of the country, a small edition has been published.

GENEALOGY

SHETHAR FAMILY

The original settlers of Guilford, Conn., among whom was John Shethar, came from Kent, Surrey and Sussex Counties, England, in 1639, landing first at New Haven and Hartford, Conn.

John Shethar belonged to an influential and educated family. He had a large estate for a man of his times, and was a frequent purchaser of lands in Guilford, Conn., and surrounding towns. He came to Guilford with the first settlers, although as he would not conform to church rules fully, it was 1650, before, under a slight change of law, he was eligible to be a Freeman.

(To be a Freeman each person was required to become a member of some Congregational Church, and none but a Freeman could hold office; however in 1664, this was fully altered by royal decree so as to permit persons who could not obtain certificates of conformity to the required doctrines, to become Freemen.)

In the "allotment of the General Inhabitants of Hammonascit" afterwards the town of Killingworth, on page 1 of the town records, John Shethar appears an accepted citizen, he buying part of the grant to Jonathan Durin. This town was ordered settled by the General Court, Oct., 1663.

1. JOHN SHETHAR is recorded as being one of the earliest planters at Guilford, Conn., in 1639. Another authority names him as being there in 1645; and another as there in 1650, and also in a list of Freemen in 1657; and we find him in a list of Freemen at Killingworth, Sept. 24, 1669. In 1648 at Guilford, he buys 3 acre home lot of Alexander Chalker who moved to Saybrook, Conn. At a general court held Feb. 20, 1649, at Guilford in regard to paying the minister's salary, each member was questioned minutely as to his ability to pay—John Shethar's answer was, "that he was willing and hoped he should be able to continue to do what at present was laid upon him, but no farther." In 1662 he signs a petition to Gov. Leete, and another Feb. 16, 1663. On June 23, 1665, he is on committee to audit towns, ministers and accounts about the mill at Guilford. On Dec. 11, 1667, he was on a committee chosen by the town to take charge of the mill at Guilford. In 1651 he was granted from the town, "rates wages of Herdsman for 2 cows of his, coming from Milford, about midsummer, seeing he could not put 'ym' in before he had 'ym' nor could the herdsman's bill now be altered." At a general assembly for elections held at Hartford, Conn., May 11, 1665, the records show this entry, "The court for the present sees cause to defer the administration of the Freeman's oath to John Shethar and others, until some further opportunity."

He married Susanna — and he died June 1, 1670, and in May, 1677, his widow Susanna is authorized by the court to sell the lands he had bargained away before his death and give title thereto. (See petition of Susanna Shethar and testimonies in Priv. Contro. I., 149, 151, at State Library, Hartford.) They had children as follows:

2. JOHN, b. Aug. 15, 1651, d. 1721,
m. Jan. 9, 1679, Elizabeth Wellman.
3. SAMUEL, b. Jan. 3, 1657, m. Mary Durant. He d. a few years after 1688.

He was born Aug. 15, 1651, lived at Killingworth, Conn., and died 1721, married Jan. 9, 1679, to Elizabeth Wellman, daughter of William Wellman, formerly of New London, Conn., but then of Killingworth, Conn. William Wellman had another daughter, Martha, who married 1674, Clement Minor who was a son of Thomas Minor, born 1607, died 1690, who was a Deacon of the Church and Ensign and Lieutenant in the Indian wars. Martha died July 5, 1681. William Wellman came from Gloucester, Mass., and settled in New London, Conn., in 1651.

Killingworth was settled in 1663, 1664, largely by settlers from Guilford, and at about the same time others went to Saybrook.

About 1750, several moved from Guilford to Litchfield, Washington, Goshen, Salisbury and Caanan in Litchfield County.

In 1760, many from Guilford settled at Richmond and Stockbridge in Berkshire Co., Mass.

In 1764, Guilford, Vt., was settled from Guilford, Conn., and also Chittenden Co., Vt.

Claremont and Charleston, N. H., were also settled from Guilford, Conn., in 1786. and some same year went to Greenville, N. Y.; more recently some have settled at Paris, Westmoreland, and Verona, N. Y.. and in the Conn. Western Reserve, Ohio, still more recently in Fairfield and other parts of Illinois.

John's estate was administered on by his son John, No. 10, Aug. 1, 1721. On May 21, 1688, the town of Killingworth voted to give six acres of land to each of her soldiers who were out in the Indian wars, one of whom was this John Shethar. The children of John and Elizabeth Wellman Shethar were as follows:

He died a few years after 1688, and his widow married Robert Chapman, Jr., of Saybrook, Conn., Oct. 29, 1694, and bore him four children, two of whom have numerous descendants. "many of whom have been persons of standing and influence in the learned professions and eminent as members of the household of faith."

On May 21, 1688, the town of Killingworth voted to give each of hersoldiers who were out in the Indian wars six acres of land, one of whom was this Samuel Shethar.

On March 16, 1687, he appears in the records as paying £0.10.0 as his share for land in dispute with Saybrook, Conn.

If children were born to this Samuel Shethar and his wife Mary Durant, no trace of them has been found.

He lived in the town of Lyme, Conn., Aug. 27, 1688, and is taxed for

The father of Sarah Jones was born in Saybrook, Conn., March 18, 1704, old style, and was married 2d time June 27, 1787. At a town meeting of Killingworth held June 22d, 1775, this Samuel Shethar was on the Town Committee on correspondence in regard to affairs of the Revolution.

“At a meeting of the Governor and Council of Safety at Hartford, Conn., June 6, 1776, voted to pay, and order drawn by Capt. Jno. Ely in favor of Samuel Shethar, for the sum of £30.0.00 for so much borrowed of him by said Ely, for the use of his said Ely's Company, and to be accounted for by said Ely on the Company's payroll." The above mentioned Ely was Dr. Jno. Ely of Lyme, Conn. Lyme was first known as Nahantick. In Kilbourne's History of the Town of Litchfield, Conn., published 1849, it reads: "On May 9, 1789, was formed what is supposed to be the first Temperance Society in the world." One of the 36 signers is Samuel Shethar, No. 12. In a parade given Aug. 6, 1806, we find Light Infantry Co. commanded by Capt. John Shethar, page 255. Samuel Shethar, No. 12, was a lister or rate maker in 1782, page 226. Their children were:

15. JOHN, born Dec. 14, 1752, died
June 19, 1835, in his 84th year. Married
Jan. 27, 1773, Sarah Smith, born May 4, 1749. She died Feb. 17, 1796, and he married for his second wife Nancy (Nelson)
Drake, widow of Maj. Joshua Drake, March

6, 1800. She was born April 23, 1766, died June 12, 1815, at Troy, N. Y. Sarah Smith, his first wife, born May 4, 1749, was a daughter of Joshua Smith who married Mary Stoddard Jan. 25, 1732, and died April 30, 1787. He was a son of Nathaniel Smith of Scituate, Mass., whose estate was administered on May 11, 1725, at Litchfield, Conn. She was the youngest of eight children. Capt. John was married to his second wife, Joan, commonly called Nancy Drake, at the Highlands, N. Y., March 6, 1800. She was a daughter of Joshua Nelson and his wife Sarah Mandeville, who was a daughter of Jacob Mandeville, born 1709, d. Aug. 27, 1784, aged 75 years, and his wife Sarah —, who died May 18, 1782. They lived at Garrisons, N. Y., on the Hudson River.

Capt. John Shethar, when he enlisted, lived at Litchfield, Conn. He was made a Sergeant in Capt. Seymour's Company, Nov. 20, 1776, of a regiment of Connecticut Light Horse Cavalry, and was on the march through New Jersey with Washington in 1776. He was made Lieutenant 2d Continental Dragoons, Dec. 31, 1776, and Captain Oct. 11, 1777. This was the 2d Regiment raised agreeable to a resolve of Congress of Dec. 12, 1776, but by another resolve of June 14, 1777, takes rank from Nov. 25th, 1776. Thus it seems "he served from the beginning of the war and obtained promotion for his gallant bravery." By his active efficiency at the battle of Brandywine, he greatly distinguished himself, and this coming under the personal observation of Gen. Washington, he immediately after the battle, presented Capt. Shethar with a sword and highly commended him for his judicious acts.

This sword, with his chapeau and a portion of his military dress and many mementoes of the War of the Revolution, have always been treasured in the family and are now in the possession of Edwin H. Shethar of New York City. Towards the close of the war, March 3, 1780, being so badly wounded as to preclude further active service for a long time, Capt. Shethar felt constrained to resign his commission. His dress sword he presented to Ark Lodge, No. 38, F. & A. M., Geneva, N. Y., and is yet in possession of these Masonic brethren. In an encounter with the Indians, he came near being captured by the Mohawk Chief, Capt. Joseph Brundin.

Statement written by Mary Osborn Hagarth, Nov. 21, 1884. Living in 1904 at 350 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.:

"My mother, Mary Jane (Shethar) Hagarth, was born in the village of Hammondsport, Steuben Co., N. Y., Sept. 3, 1806. Her father, Capt. John Shethar, died June 14, 1835, aged 54. Her mother Johanna Nelson was born in Phillipstown, Dutchess County, N. Y., died at Troy, N. Y., 1815.

aged 50. My grandfather Shethar owned a very large and valuable farm in the valley in which Hammondsport is situated. He became security for a Mr. William Root of Albany, and lost all his property. With a wagon load of household goods, fifty dollars in money and two little girls, one of them my Aunt Betsey, then four, and her sister, my mother, two years old, Grandfather and Grandmother Shethar, started for my grandfather Nelson's in Phillips-town. There Grandfather Shethar was laid up with rheumatism for six months, could walk only with crutches. As soon as he was able he went to Albany, rented a house and took boarders; there my mother's first recollections of herself begin. When she was six years old, Grandfather Shethar moved to Troy, N. Y. After about four years' residence in that city, her mother died and was buried there, where also her Aunt Martha Haight died in April, and in the September following Grandfather Shethar moved to Alexandria, Va., to reside with his son, my mother's half brother, James Smith Shethar, who was very much my mother's senior. His son James Shethar (son of James S.) was two years older than my mother and they were always more like brother and sister than cousins. When my grandfather and mother went to Alexandria, Aunt Betsey went to Bath to live with Aunt Faulkner, the daughter of my grandmother Shethar by a former marriage with Major Joshua Drake. They stayed in Alexandria four years, when my half-uncle left them to reside in Charleston, S. C. They came 'across the country to Bath, N. Y., in a one horse wagon.' My mother speaks of this as a very interesting journey. She took her first horseback ride, five miles, behind her father. They remained in Bath, N. Y., six months and then went to Geneva, N. Y. Mrs. James Shethar after her husband's death also removed to Geneva. My mother spent a part of the time with Aunt Faulkner at the hotel and part with Mrs. James Shethar. For a short time before her marriage, she kept house for her father."

Narrated by Miss Elizabeth Hogarth now living in 1904, at 550 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., who had the facts direct from Captain Shethar, her grandfather:

"During the Revolutionary War, Capt. John Shethar was arrested as a spy, taken to New York at a time when the English held only N. Y. He was examined before Admiral Digby who a short time previous had arrived with Prince William, Duke of Clarence, then 17 years of age, who was afterwards William IV, the King, who preceded Queen Victoria. Prince William was present at the examination before Admiral Digby. Capt. Shethar when committed for trial said, 'As a soldier I have no favors to ask, but as a gentleman, Sir, I have one!'

Well, what is it? 'That my guardsmen be British officers, Sir, not American refugees who have fled from their country's altar.' Then the young Prince said, 'Well, young man, when this disgraceful affair is settled, I intend to make a tour of this continent and would like to have you for a travelling companion,' to which Capt. Shethar replied, 'Well, Sir, if our circumference was no larger than yours, (referring to occupation of New York), we could soon make a tour of it.' Then Admiral Digby said, 'I guess your Highness has got it now,' to which Capt. Shethar replied, 'We do not now in our country pay that deference to royalty that you do in yours.' "

"Capt. Shethar once had for a prisoner a Capt. Williamson, of the British Army, who after he was released, returned to New York and told his wife of the good treatment he had received at the hands of Capt. Shethar. So pleased was she, that while Capt. Shethar was a prisoner, she arranged matters and gave him a grand dinner, and ever afterwards, he was, through this influence, treated well. He was visited every day by the young Prince William who admired his sturdy manhood. When released Capt. Shethar called on the Prince."

Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. John, lived in Geneva, N. Y., and kept house for him. She never married; before this she lived with her brother James, who lived in Alexandria, District of Columbia, then went to Seneca and Geneva, N. Y.

Capt. Shethar was a member of St. Paul Lodge, F. & A. M. of Litchfield, Conn., and afterwards of Ark Lodge of Geneva, N. Y. Demit and Apron of Capt. Shethar were sent to Ark Lodge, by Miss Elizabeth Hogarth, some years ago.

Capt. John Shethar was a pensioner in 1818 and was living at that time in Alexandria, Va. Shethar Street in Hammonds-port, N. Y. was named for him, he having been granted about one-tenth of the original township.

My father was married to Ann Whistler at Detroit, Michigan, during the war of 1812. At the surrender of Gen. Hull the officers were taken as prisoners of war to Quebec, Canada.

My mother was ill, and as the wives of the other officers were allowed to go with their husbands, all were taken in a boat to the vessel which took them to Buffalo, N. Y. After awhile the prisoners were exchanged, and my parents went to Litchfield, Conn.
